So many girls are sensitive, shall it call it, or is it exacting, about correspondence. They feel an unpardonable offense is committed if the letter does not arrive, when the lapse more quarreling uite a bit. What would you advise me to do?

Tour friendship won't survive many more quarrels so try to settle your differences amicably. You know, dear, we must consider the wishes and prefestings the man would prefer to present verbally at the proper time.

This question of asking a man to write is like the one about inviting him back to the house after a first call. Do the spontaneous thing. If you want him to come back, don't be so formally proper as to send him away thinking maybe you wouldn't care if you never saw him again. In all of these little problems of what to do and what not, a good rule to

However, if the question to be answered is whether to ask him to write or trust to Providence that he will. I should suggest a very open hint adroitly committed that a letter from him would be delightful because you naturally are interested to know how he is getting along and what kind of time he is having. And even if he doesn't write as he impulsively promised, if wouldn't be too severe on him when he got back and wanted to take up the thread of the romance where it was left off.

CAMPBELL'S

Linen Composes This Chic Jacket Costume

by Corinne Low

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—You can never tell how a stripe is seing to run in its chase after Chic. That is, perhaps, the secret of that fascination which always lurks in the striped fabric. By varying the direction of the stripe it is possible to make a smart costume without calling in one single touch of trimming.

Such was the theory of the designer of today's effective costume of striped black and white linen and how well he has succeeded is witnessed by the result. The charm of this jacket frock is dependent entirely upon the variation in the direction of the stripes, upon the bontrast between the diagonal drift of the skirt pattern and the vartical one of the jacket. This contrast is heightened by the fact that the wide girdle, set below the plain white linen bodice, chooses yet another progression. It runs horizontally!

As to the skull cap shown with this frock, it is still crowning many a fashtened head. New ones designed for

As to the skull cap shown with this frock, it is still crowning many a fashionable head. New ones designed for autumn frequently show a greater height of crown, sometimes achieved through the use of a tiars of material stretched across the top and frequently brought down over the ears. And the very story of the book ought to make it a best seller. I told it to you a couple of weeks ago—how ras to have been written by a ned writer, edited a little by the himself, and called his book, and when he read the manuscript he how when he read the manuscript he just couldn't pretend that such "fine" writing was his. The book was probably, in its first form, full of the world hand clappings, too, and this modest youth, who never spoke of himself as I, but always of himself and his ship as "wa" couldn't let any one think "we," couldn't let any one think thought he was a hero.

about Charles Lindbergh the fiver.
Everything that does not touch his flying life he merely mentions. That may be the deepest possible psychology, in a way, for probably the only things that have ever touched him have been things connected with his flying.

There isn't a word about what he thought about his slip or the science of aeronautics. His greatest emotion is expressed in words of arguitude to the nations that wel-comed him, and those words are not fulsome or gestury. The only things had to say, it is very obvious, is, in his own mind, what he has to say about flying. Many would have the surface of the surf he had to say, it is very obvious, is, in his own mind, what he has to say about flying. Many would have liked to know how he felt when he made his great leap into the dark. Almost anyone else would have mined a large and impressive story out of those thirty odd hours. Not Charles Lindbergh. He writes about them in only a few pages and then mostly about the a few pages, and then mostly about the equipment of his plane.

C. Alphonse Smith is known for the was in his early career a stunt flyer, a parachute jumper, a carnival enter tainer, a "barnstormer" like the men we see making breath taking jeaps over the city or taking people for a five dollar ride on the edge of town. But when we have finished "We "we understand the assurance which made that lonely flight possible. He knew everything that he could have known about his ship live must be correct and call it what he calls it; not planel. He had done stuffs likely of result in sudden death, he had educed as much as he thought the flight would call on him to endure, and he was adding the one thing in the world that he had ended with his friend. O. Henry, with easily live would be called the world that he wand that he wand that he wand that he wand that he had ended with his friend. O. If most of us wished that he would write a book about the human being and less about the machine, we simply misunderstood our human being. As a matter of fact, when it comes to telling the things that happened to him when he was the pet of kings—as the Victorians probably would may—he just says nothing and turns the narrative over to Fitzhugh Greene, who has obviously been not only told, but ordered, not to make his here too gaudy a hero. Rickard's time in Chicago Monday will be thoroughly occupied. He intends to O. K. the stadium seating plans, place his order for 155,000 tickets, set up a central ticket agency, and with Getz let the contracts for the placing of the seats.

Mr. Getz, it is understood, already has chosen his committee of three, to handle the ticket distribution. He has redecided to defeat Kendail Morrison and to make it impossible for pressure to be applied for an inequitable distribution.

The distance was too great. But thousands are planning to come to Chicago. We have had enough applications to assure there or four special trains from the Twin Cities, and at least one special each from Kansas City, Omaha, Sioux City, Superior, Seattle, and Butte." Women Have Preference.

Secondly—the starting time has been advanced from 3 o'clock to 7 o'clock. Contestants for the first five hours are published hereafter and insofar as it is possible they are asked to appear in their hour. Should anyone be unable to drive at the time assigned to him, he can appear earlier or later and an effort will be made to squeeze him in after the golfers assigned to that time have driven.

Women will not be assigned time, I but will be given preference and drive whenever they arrive, at any time during the day.

These changes are regretted but such an overwhelming entry was hardly expected and in the words of Harvey Woodruff, you golfers have the golf editor yelling "Help! Help!" That's stealing Harvey Woodruff's stuff, but that's legitimate inasmuch as he refused to enter this contest City, Omaha, Sioux City, Superior, Seattle, and Butte."

The New York Central and Northwestern reported heavy demand for extra cars, but neither would forecast the number of special trains which would be required to handle the traffic. G. J. McGuire, a representative of the Western Passenger association, with headquarters in Chicago, said yesterday he expected no reduction in railroad rates for fight fans. Persons financially equipped to attend a championship boxing match do not need reduced fares to encourage them to make the trip, he asserted.

Hotels to Reap Harvest.

Downtown hotels, which expect to reap the biggest harvest from Mr. Rickard's fistic extravaganza, are receiving hundreds of applications daily for reservations. None plans to advance rates the day of the fight, although some will require their guests to rent rooms for two nights.

lubricating service-and the most dependable

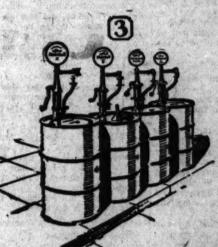

As you stop at the curb, Mobiloil service awaits you. A quart or more of the correct grade of Gargoyle Mobiloil is quickly added to the engine reservoir and you are on your way.

The biggest group of independent dealers in America offers you authorized Mobiloil curb service.

Illustration No. 1 shows the Mobiloil Curb Cabinet. Mustration No. 2 shows the Curb Bottle Stand. And thousands of Mobiloil dealers have the four-barrel battery (see picture No. 3) at or near the curb.

These dealers serve you with Mobiloil - the oil that is asked for by 3 out of every 4 motorists who buy oil by name. Mobiloil—the oil used by Colonel Lindbergh when he flew from New York to Paris, by Commander Byrd when he flew to the North Pole, by the U.S. Army Round-the-World fliers-and by the U.S. Army fliers in their Hawaiian flight-and by more automobile engineers than any other three oils combined.

Put Mobiloil in your crankcase. It is the cheapest oil to use and the most convenient to buy.

Madison Street Terminal

Added comfort for Chicago & North Western suburban patrons is assured with the installation of the first complement of the latest "North Western" design suburban coaches equipped with Hyatt Bearings. Within two months 120 coaches will be in service; each comfortably seating 98 persons or one-third more than the old style coaches.

Commuters will appreciate the riding comfort of Hys Bearings which make starting and stopping easies. These new all-metal coaches are finished in tan wall cream ceilings and green upholstering. The window have brass frames allowing more glass surface, and the double-acting doors on wide vestibules render passage easy.

The electric lighting placed immediately over seats makes reading easier. Roofed and plated with steel-strong aluminum, each coach is nearly four tons lighter in weight than the old style coaches. They are absolutely fireproof.

These coaches will prove just another instance of North Western's policy of comfort for its patrons.

"I got a very good job through a Tribune Ad. My ad was placed on a Wednesday afternoon. At 6 o'clock Thursday morning the phone started to ring and never let up for two days. That ad was MARIE FLYNN, 4805 Kimbark avenue.

Tribune Situation Wanted Ad keeps phone ringing two days!

IF you were seeking a situation, wouldn't you like to have prospective 1 employers keep your phone busy for two days with offers of positions? Think of the chance you would have to select the job you want!

That's exactly what a Tribune "Situation Wanted" Ad did for Marie Flynn of 4805 Kimbark Avenue. Her phone started to ring at six o'clock the morning her want ad appeared—and kept ringing steadily for two days! Of course, it was easy for her to select a fine job from this swarm of offers.

You, too, can profit by listing your desires and qualifications in a Tribune Situation Wanted Ad. It is an unexcelled way to reach Chicago employers.
